

HENRICO TO VOTE FOR SCHOOL LEVY

Varina and Brookland Districts Decide To-Morrow About Increase in Tax.

Voters of Varina and Brookland Districts, Henrico county, are urged to turn out to-morrow for the election to determine whether or not school levies in those districts shall be raised. The proposition in Varina is to increase the levy from the present rate of 15 cents on $100 of assessed property to 25 cents, and in Brookland from 15 to 25 cents on the same amount.

In Varina the fund, if the election is successful, will be used for the erection of two more consolidated school-houses similar to the one now in operation in that district. The amount to be raised in the other district will go to the general fund for the improvement of the district schools. There is every reason to believe that the election in Brookland will be successful. In Varina, however, it is considered doubtful in spite of the fact that the improvements are needed there as badly as in any other section of the county.

After some consideration by the School Board it was not thought expedient to bond Varina District for the amount necessary to construct the school buildings; that the most feasible method to raise the money by this method the first school could probably be completed in time for the session of 1911-1912. The second should be ready the following session. Although it would require two or three years longer to build the schools by this proposition, yet it is said it could be accomplished with a great saving to the district, owing to the fact that the entire indebtedness could be cleared in twelve years. A bond issue of twenty-five or thirty years would necessitate a much longer outlay. After the school buildings are fully paid for a district levy of 25 cents would be sufficient for running expenses.

JOHN R. GORDON ENTERS SUIT AGAINST STREET RAILWAY

Suit for damages to the amount of $5,000 was brought in the Law and Equity Court yesterday against the Richmond and York River Passenger and Power Company by John R. Gordon. In his declaration Mr. Gordon claims that while driving near the corner of Twenty-eighth and G Streets on December 17 a car ran into his buggy, throwing him out and injuring him painfully.

building will cost $6,500, and will be built by James Fox & Sons. The construction of the new building will be in keeping with the other engine houses of the city. During the course of its construction the horses and apparatus will be quartered in a shed near St. John's Church. It is expected that the company will get into its new quarters by October 1.

A permit was issued to A. H. Christian to erect an addition to dwelling 261 West Franklin Street. The cost will be $2,750.

Fire on S. A. L. Trestle.
Fire was discovered last night on the Seaboard Air Line trestle over Marshall Street, but was extinguished by an engine company of the fire department before any damage was done. It is thought that the fire was caused by a spark from a locomotive.

No Sponsors in Reunion Parade.

First Thought to Be Given to Veterans at Memphis, Orders Declare.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., May 29.—General Clement A. Evans, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and those who are arranged for the reunion to be held in Memphis, June 8, 9 and 10, are determined that there shall be no ground for a charge that the old soldiers themselves have been slighted during the festivities or that social features have overshadowed the part played by the men whose careers have made the gathering possible.

With the co-operation of the officers of the organization Memphis will make reception of the veterans and hospitality to the men who fought the South's battles from 1861 to 1865 the principal feature of the reunion of 1909, although nothing will be lacking in the way of elaborate entertainment for all who attend.

issued by the general commanding, and to-night General William E. Mickle, adjutant-general and chief of staff, by command of General Evans, published several orders touching upon what will be expected of those who enjoy this hospitality, and laying down certain restrictions. General order No. 14 says:

"As there prevails among the members of the federation a great deal of uncertainty as to what provision will be made by the Memphis reunion committee for the entertainment of the sponsors and maids of honor who may be in attendance at the approaching reunion, the general commanding feels that he should let those interested understand exactly what will be done.

"The committee is very desirous that there should be a large attendance of sponsors and maids from departments, divisions, brigades and camps, and is determined to do all possible to render pleasant the sojourn of all sponsors and maids who come to Memphis, and shall see that they are supplied with invitations to the various balls and entertainments that are given, but cannot attempt to meet the hotel expenses of the 2,000 who will be present or provide them with escorts or carriages. These must be provided by those who elect the young ladies to these positions. Neither can the committee allow them in the parade, even though they supply themselves with carriages, as the line must be made as short as possible, that the old heroes, for whose pleasure the reunions are given, who are rapidly growing fewer in number and feeble in body, may not be shut out of the entire line of march.

"The only provision that the reunion committee will make will be to supply hotel accommodations at the Peabody Hotel, the general headquarters, for one sponsor and one maid of honor from general and department headquarters, for June 8, 9 and 10; and furnish carriages for them and for the sponsors and maids from divisions in the parade."

Indiana County Very Wet.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 29.—The local option election in Ripley county went against the "dry" to-day and the unofficial returns show a majority of 84 for the "wets." Interest was intense and the vote cast was larger than that recorded at the presidential election of last year.

EMPEROR BOWS TO POPE

Kaiser's Plan to Bring About Meeting of Italian and Austrian Rulers Falls Through.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
ROME, May 29.—A delegation consisting of 900 Catholic union employees of the French Railways had a special audience with the Pope and presented to him an album containing the signatures of all the members of the union, numbering more than 45,000. The day after the audience the Frenchmen had a banquet, to which they invited their comrades of the Italian railways. Many accepted. They dined well at the Pope's expense. After the banquet the Italians assembled and adopted a resolution deploring the fact that they had accepted the invitation, thus offending the sentiments of a majority of the Italian railway employees.

Queen Dowager and Duke Ill.
Both ex-Queen Margherita and the Duke of Aosta are seriously ill here. The ex-Queen has been suffering for more than a month with spasmodic contractions of the muscles of the face and neck, and with symptoms of obscure artificial tetanus. Every effort has been made to hide the real nature of the disease, especially the cause, which is said to have been a poisonous hair dye freely used by the ex-Queen, who prided herself on the light color of her hair, which is naturally dark. It is now turning white. The King visits her daily. Several times he and Queen Helena have been summoned at night, but the ex-Queen's recovery is now not despaired of, though it is feared she will be a lifelong invalid.

The Duke of Aosta is suffering from bronchial pneumonia. His condition was so serious that his wife, who was not on speaking terms with him, came on the King's order to be reconciled to him. His condition, however, improved, and the duchess returned to Naples.

Kaiser's Scheme Falls.
The Kaiser, realizing the importance thereof to the stability of the triple alliance, has attempted to arrange a return visit to Rome by Emperor Francis Joseph or Archduke Ferdinand of King Humbert's official visit to Vienna in 1881. The opposition of the Vatican could not be overcome, but the idea was to get the Emperor to write to the King of Italy that old age prevented his making the long journey to Rome, thus giving the Italian King an opportunity of offering to receive him in some other city. The scheme failed, as the Emperor would not consent, basing his refusal on the ground that it was his duty as a Catholic sovereign not to oppose the wishes of the Pope.

nation goes, the two plays are identical. "But there are differences. In Barker's play the guilty lady is presented as a person of light and unworthy character, and the retribution that overtakes the celebrated minister is his utter political ruin, followed by suicide. In Fagan's play the lady is successfully thrown on the sympathy and admiration of the audience as a noblehearted and devoted woman. The minister recognizes his position and brings in his bill triumphantly, with a stain on his character, and the man who has effected the exposure is forced to deny his own words, which are perfectly true, and is held up to contempt and execration as a scolded viper, who has attempted to poison with his venom an exquisite and poetic human relationship.

Curious State of Affairs.

"This highly unconventional version has been licensed without a word of demur, while Barker's sternly conventional one has been suppressed, and as the suppression is widely advertised and the play remains buried, the public is left to infer that Barker has committed the disgraceful act of writing an improper play. Here is a straight case. Whoever prohibited 'Waste' and licensed 'The Earth' was evidently some one who may have loved morality much, but who certainly hated the half-penny press more, and we are all forced by the existing ridiculous state of affairs to assume technically that this prejudiced person is none other than the King.

"If that is not enough to convince all the authorities concerned, royal, ministerial and journalistic and common, that the situation is altogether intolerable, nothing is."

THINKS LORDS SHOULD ACT

Goldwin Smith Writes to Spectator Discussing English Budget.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
LONDON, May 29.—Goldwin Smith evidently believes that the Lords should deal with the budget on its merits when it reaches the Upper House, instead of following the modern precedent of pro forma approval. He writes from Toronto to the Spectator as follows:

"What will the Lords do, is once more the cry, as it was when the reform bill was going up to the House of Lords. It is the cry here, too, though in a less anxious strain, for Canada is still under the supreme power of the British Parliament. It seems to me hardly possible that the Lords should be constitutionally debarrd from voting on a tax bill, now that they pay taxes, whatever may have been the case when they contributed not in taxes but in the military service of their fleets. However, it surely is important to remark that the biggest measure is not merely financial, but is plainly political in a socialistic or semi-socialistic line. The House of Lords is the second chamber, the only second chamber that the nation at present has, and it surely is not to be desired that a measure of great political movement should be passed by the vote of a single chamber without the possibility of amendment. I am not saying whether the measure is right or wrong, but only that it appears to me unquestionably to be not only financial, but political. The nation at all events seems to want a little time to think."
